

About Terry Haas

A tough critic with a heart of gold, Terry Haas tells it like she sees it on HGTV's acclaimed show, "Designed to Sell." By giving sellers a $2,000 budget and a team of experts, the show demonstrates how to turn a tired house into a showpiece. Now in her second season, Terry shows viewers how staging a home, improving curb appeal and making low-cost improvements can help to sell a property at top dollar.

Terry began her career in real estate over a decade ago, advising eager homebuyers in Atlanta. From there, she served as regional project manager for one of the nation's premier real estate companies, overseeing the sale of 3,000 homes in the Washington, D.C. metropolitan area and managing more than 120 employees. As Terry's television career took off, she signed on as a realtor with Keller Williams Realty in Northern Virginia.

Terry now runs her home-staging business from her new home in the Charleston, S.C. community of Daniel Island.

For more information:
www.terryhaas.com

*Get Your Home
"Designed to Sell"*

Professional home-staging services by

TERRY
HAAS

What Terry Haas can do for you

First impressions are everything! That's why it's important for potential buyers to see your home in its best light. Terry can help transform everyday spaces into real gems with strong buyer appeal. The result: a quicker sale and higher profit.

Services offered include:

- Clutter elimination
- Organization
- Furniture layout
- Lighting
- Creating a "model home" look
- Lighten and brighten small spaces
- Creative techniques to minimize flaws
- Décor improvements
- Objective eye to depersonalize spaces
- Accessorizing
- Consultation on repairs and low-cost improvements

What is home staging?

Home staging is about creating immediate buyer interest in your property. Terry can help you reinvent your home by enhancing the highlights and minimizing the flaws. From your home's curb appeal to closet organization, nothing is spared from her critical eye. The goal is to use minimal funds and creative techniques to make your home more attractive to potential buyers.

Why is home staging important?

Your home will sell more quickly and for more money if you show off every room to its greatest advantage. By making a small investment in home staging and low-cost improvements, you can realize a significant return!

